DID YOU KNOW?

U.S. Census Bureau projections from 2020 predict Americans age 65 and older will increase from 56.1 million to 73.1 million from 2020 to 2030.

Many of your patients face immune system challenges every day

Stress, inadequate sleep, poor eating habits, and general aging can leave patients vulnerable to seasonal immune system challenges. Maintaining a healthy immune system and taking nutritional and herbal supplements can help prepare your patients for a healthy response to life's daily stressors.*

Natural Aging

Many adults experience immune system challenges as they get older. That's why, when people age, the immune system can require some additional support to function optimally. Proper nutrition and supplementation, along with other lifestyle considerations, can help maintain wellness.*

Lack of Sleep

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, more than a third of adults do not get the recommended amount of sleep on a regular basis. Numerous studies have shown a link between adequate sleep and healthy immune system function.

The American Academy of Sleep Medicine and Sleep Research Society recommend that adults ages 18-60 sleep at least seven hours each night to promote optimal health and well-being.
